Welcome to Erasmus University

This map is given to you by Erasmus Magazine, your best source of information during your student time.

Building names explained

In short, most buildings are assigned a letter and many buildings have a name as well. These letters and names are mostly unrelated.

Discover the campus

Scan for more campus curiosities.

Der Stein des Weisen

Nice for making trick mirror selfies!

The Aula is uniquely designed for ceremonies such as the Opening of the Academic Year:

Professors descent from the stairs on the left.

The stairs on the right are for the non-academic staff.

Student associations climb the middle stairs.

Erasmus Gallery

Check out the temporary exhibitions or the permanent collection, located in the Erasmus building.

Bee palace

Campus garden

Filled with fruits, vegetables and herbs.

Langeveld building

Named after Rotterdam's first female professor Henny Langeveld.

The building meets the highest standards of sustainability and is famous for the plants and tree trunks supporting the building.

Shared e-scooters

We've got plenty of 'em.

Parked in creative ways.

No parking!!!

Abandoned and improperly parked bikes are relentlessly removed by the university. So, rack your bike!

Don't feed the geese

They can take care of themselves just fine.

Also: don't slip on their poop.

Erasmus MC roof garden

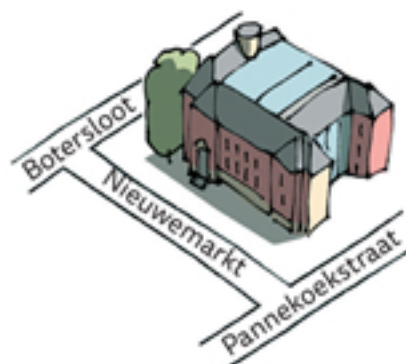

Relax in this green place with a great view of the skyline.

Open for patients as well as visitors!

Erasmus University College

Situated in the centre of the city is Erasmus University College with a fancy building close to the hip and happening bars and shops of the Pannekoekstraat and Botersloot.

Smoking ban

There is a ban on smoking throughout the university grounds, so go behind the blue line if you want to light up a cigarette.

Erasmus Magazine is here for you!

Erasmus Magazine (EM) is the independent, journalistic platform of Erasmus University Rotterdam. EM is fully bilingual and brings you news, articles and videos.

Do you have tips, an event to promote or are you looking for a side job as a journalist? Feel free to visit the editorial office in HB-108 (between Theil and Tinbergen).
